Teaching from Yesterday to Today

May 20, 2021

“I Liked Most Every Minute of Teaching”

This article was written by Evadna Keller and appeared in the New Virginian newspaper in December 1974. It is about Mary Kathryn “Katie” Gleckler Irwin who taught at the New Virginia School from 1919 to 1959.

Can you imagine facing kids day after day for years and liking most every minute of it? Mrs. Irwin did! In fact, when she was growing up, she never dreamed of anything else but being a teacher when she completed her own education. “Back in those days, though, there really weren’t many other job opportunities for women.”

Katie, as most of us call her now, was born in Ayrshire, Iowa, in Palo Alto County on January 25, 1892 and started to school in the one-room Lost Island Lake Country School. When she was ten years old, the family moved to New Virginia, and her dad built the house in which Richard Strange lives. Her parents, obviously wanting to give her the best education possible, paid tuition and sent her to school in New Virginia rather than to the country school in their area. She graduated from New Virginia High School in 1910 but remained at home for another year.

A high school diploma was all that was required, in those early years, before one went into teaching. The country schools had three terms: Fall, Winter and Spring. In the Spring of 1911, a teacher was needed to fill out this term at Big Rock Country School, and Miss Gleckler began her teaching career. Big Rock, as such, doesn’t exist anymore, but this school was located northeast of New Virginia on the west side of the road across from Ed McDole’s house.

In the Fall of 1911, Miss Gleckler taught in the Happy Hollow Country School and completed all three terms there. Happy Hollow has also gone by the wayside. This school was down the hill just southwest of George Smalley’s house near the former railroad tracks. “Of course, in those days, you were your own janitor, and I had 36 children in that one-room school to prepare lessons for, including all the elementary grades through the eighth. Some of my students were nearly as old as I was. My most memorable experience there was the morning I went in to get the fire started and the necessary preparations made before the children arrived, and I discovered a tramp had evidently spent the night there. Thank goodness he was gone before I arrived! That was a hilarious year!” The next year, she came in to New Virginia and taught one year, then was married to Benjamin Harrison Irwin on June 4, 1913. She and Ben made their home on the farm where Dick Hoversten lives. Much too soon, however, Katie had to return to teaching, as her husband passed away in 1918, and she was left with two small children to support. Happy Hollow School had closed by this time, so she bought the building, had it moved into town and made into the house that has been her home ever since. In the Fall of 1919, she began teaching in the New Virginia School again and continued through the year of 1959, when she retired. During these years it also became necessary to have college credits to keep the teaching certificate, so she completed those requirements by attending both Simpson College and Drake University while helping her two children to complete their college education. Over the years, she taught children of at least three generations of several families.

Since her retirement, her hobbies have been quilting, making afghans, crocheting and making craft items such as coat hangers, bead necklaces, etc. Her most loved ones, though, are her flowers, gardening and cooking. Even though her health does not permit her to be as active as she’d like, she still gardens and cans the harvested food items. She also had to slow down on participation in organizations, but she is a member of the United Methodist Church, over a 50-year member of Neophyte Chapter Number 206, Order of the Eastern Star, a member of Past Matrons Club and belongs to the New Virginia Garden Club.

Nearly every winter since her retirement, Katie has spent a few months with her children in Illinois and Indiana, and at this writing, she is making preparations to leave for this season. She’s always glad to go for a visit, but by spring, she’s quite anxious to get back to her own home and out into her garden and flower bed.

Many reading this article will no doubt be a past student of Mrs. Irwin. To you, especially, she said, “I liked most every minute of teaching school, and I’m always interested in hearing from or about any student I’ve ever taught. I hear from several at Christmas time, and others stop in when they come to town. I really do appreciate hearing from and visiting all of them.”

Katie Irwin passed away at the home of her daughter Martha and husband Earl Finder in Urbana, Illinois on July 12, 1978 at the age of 86. At that time, her son James and wife Martha Irwin lived in Indianapolis, Indiana. Katie had five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren at the time of her death.

Any number of former students have been heard to make remarks of how well they liked Mrs. Irwin and what part she had in helping them overcome their trials in education or achieve their goal in life. There’s no doubt that she holds a pleasant spot in the hearts and minds of most who’ve ever known her. Thanks to Jody Taylor and Vicki Morris who suggested this retelling of Katie Irwin’s story and identified Katie’s house as being at 128 Main Street and subsequently owned by Roger Carlson, Amy Morris Janssen and Merlin Morris.

A Glimpse in Kindergarten

When I began my teaching career in 1990, I never could have imagined the course education would take. It has definitely changed over the last 31 years.

My perspective comes exclusively from kindergarten. Not only have I taught only this grade level, but I also have had many different experiences that range from half-day, full-day, and team teaching. I have also taught in three districts and two states: Iowa and Missouri.

Let's take a look at how it has changed.

1990: full-day kindergarten

Preschool: Preschool was most often in churches, and the focus was social and fine motor skills, not academic. Most of my students never attended Preschool.

Kindergarten Report Card: My report card consisted of: full name, address, phone number, tying shoes, letters, sounds, number recognition, counting, shapes, colors, and social skills. The reports cards were several layers of paper that would transfer any printed information to the bottom sheets.

Our daily routine: We would do the calendar, read stories, practice handwriting in our writing books, and learning letters and sounds with the Letter People.

Math skills were taught through a writing curriculum using workbooks.

Each month, we had a science or social studies theme. Apples in September meant we would make applesauce on Johnny Appleseed Day. Art projects were done weekly as we worked through each theme.

Kindergarten stressed the importance of learning through play. This skill allowed students to learn about sharing, discovering through trial and error, following the rules of a game, assembling, constructing, and using our imagination.

We had snacks, napped, and had three recesses every day. The children also had special classes: library, art, physical education, and music.

Technology: Computers were non-existent for teachers and students. The only electrical device I would use was a TV. I would sign up to use the large TV on a cart to watch any educational videos. This was done by checking it out from the library.

2021: full-day kindergarten

Preschool: Students usually have a full year of Preschool prior to arriving in Kindergarten. Some have also attended three-year-old Preschool programs as well.

Kindergarten Report Cards:

Our report card is based on the Iowa Common Core. Academic standards are selected that reflect what a kindergartener should know prior to entering first grade. We still need to know our letters, sounds, numbers, and counting skills. But now we are reading words, decoding, and writing words. We are emergent readers and read 50+ sight words.

In math, we need to know the numbers, write the numbers, and count. But we also need to know greater and less than, counting on from a certain number, using games to learn mathematical skills, and solving addition and subtraction equations.

Grading is completed using my laptop on a platform called PowerSchool.

Daily Routine: This school year is focused around health and safety. First of all, we must all wear masks. Due to the pandemic, we are required to keep students and teachers safe at school. This has been a challenge for some of my students. I never dreamed I would be saying, "Cover your nose" multiple times a day to some of my students; but I am. We also wash our hands often, use hand sanitizer each time we enter the classroom, and practice social distancing as best we can.

We still do the calendar, but it has many more components. We find several ways to make a number, look at patterns, do addition, compare numbers, use a number line, make predictions, and document our observations.

We still learn letters and sounds, but we are also learning how to build and decode words. We have writing time on white boards and don't make just letters. We write words and sentences. The children have small group reading time and large group. We are emergent readers.

Math is not just learning numbers, but discussing our thinking, problem solving, and using manipulatives to show our thinking.

Science is not a theme a month. It is ongoing with weather, living and non-living things, and engineering. Art projects are usually tied to a current lesson or topic.

Play no longer is a focus. It is now part of Preschool. We have play time/center time at the beginning of the year. As new expectations are introduced, play time goes away. Play time/center time is usually inside recess.

We still have snacks, but we only have rest time the first half of the year. We have two recesses a day. We still have library, art, p.e., and music. We also have guidance class.

Technology: Students are savvy on an iPad, tablet, and some a chrome book. They are beginning to acquire typing skills. Our students can interact on a smart board. Many also know how to operate a smartphone.

Due to COVID, we can learn from home on a computer, if needed. In the past year, I have had remote students who get on a platform to get lessons. I insert recorded lessons, stories, videos, and printable activities for learning. Parents can help them remotely, and they respond back with videos, photos, and written responses for their work.

I have evolved as a teacher over the past 31 years. I am grateful for all the amazing educators with whom I have had the pleasure to work along the way. I have been blessed with not only great school districts, but also great students. Although the program has changed, the five- and six-year-olds who enter my classroom every year are still the same. They arrive each fall, full of wonder, curiosity, excitement, and love.

Becky Bertrand

A reflection of Teaching

Throughout my career, I have been asked to focus on different components of the teaching and learning processes. Educators have realized that emotional intelligence directly affects one's relative intelligence. Research even suggests that emotional intelligence is more important.

This past school year, I focused on teaching peace, growth mindset, and emotional intelligence, alongside my English Language Arts curriculum. I believe experience is the best teacher, because learning takes place when it is individualized.

I feel blessed to have started this school year back at Interstate 35 taking on a new teaching assignment as the fifth grade ELA teacher. I have surprised people by saying that this year has been one of the best teaching experiences of my career. I tell teachers weekly that the fifth graders are going to change the world. Their emotional and relative intelligence are outstanding. I can't wait to see what they become!

Iowa Fireworks Farm

One of the biggest challenges in the fireworks industry for 2021 has been getting products. The fireworks business was booming in 2020 across the U.S. This resulted in most of the wholesalers in the U.S. having empty warehouses after the 4th of July last summer, when they historically would have 20% to 40% of their warehouse still full at that time. At the same time last summer, U.S. consumer spending was peaking, as many consumers were buying things to entertain themselves or fix up their homes, since they hadn't been able to travel or do the things they normally would have done, due to COVID. This led to a surge in the demand for freight from China to the U.S., since so much of what the U.S. consumes is made in China, and fireworks are no exception. Unfortunately, almost all of the consumer fireworks used in the U.S. are made in China. As demand for more consumer goods increased through the fall and into the holidays, spots on cargo ships from China to the U.S. became harder and harder to get, as well as more expensive. The shipping cost of fireworks, which makes up a large part of the retail price, has roughly doubled from May 2020 to May 2021. As a result of the shipping issues and the unprecedented demand for fireworks last summer, there is expected to be an industry-wide shortage of 30% to 50% of the usual fireworks this summer. Fortunately for our store, once I saw how demand was ramping up last summer as soon as we opened our doors in June, I started ordering additional inventory and haven't stopped since. While there may be some things we would like to have on the shelves that we can't get this summer, we have well over twice as much inventory on hand as we did last summer, so we should be able to supply everyone with their boomers this summer, but if you want the best selection, it will be smart to shop early and not wait until the 1st of July.

Last summer, as a way of supporting the community that supports us, we partnered with a few organizations and selected a product for each of those organizations where we would donate $10 from the sale of each firework to the respective organization. We were able to make donations at the end of the season to the New Virginia Old Settlers Committee, the I-35 Booster Club and the Truro Betterment Committee. We're looking forward to doing the same thing again this summer or possibly expanding the idea.

While many fireworks businesses try to have as many locations as possible to maximize sales, our approach is to create a pleasant and memorable shopping experience to everyone who comes through our doors. We do that by having a clean, organized store and knowledgeable staff who can assist those customers who want help in picking out their fireworks, all while providing the best value possible. I know that I always enjoy my fireworks more when I feel like I got a good deal on them. Our flagship "home" location will always be New Virginia, but if we can replicate that experience, I wouldn't rule out additional locations, but you don't get better by being bigger, you get bigger by being better.

Those Who Served

Those Who Served Junior D. Edwards

Junior D. Edwards from Indianola, Iowa, was born in October 1926. He served in the US Army and first joined in January 1945, at 19 years of age, just before World War II ended. He was discharged in August of 1946 but rejoined the Army in June of 1947. Junior attained the rank of Sergeant First Class and was sent to Korea. On January 2, 1951 Sfc Edwards was killed after distinguishing himself by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action against the enemy. On January 16, 1952, his father received the Medal of Honor on his behalf at the Pentagon. Sfc Edwards is buried at the I.O.O.F. Cemetery in Indianola, Iowa.

The Medal of Honor has only been presented 3,526 times since 1861. It is the highest award anyone in the US military can receive. It always involves extreme war combat and extraordinary courage in the face of death. There are only 67 living recipients today. They don't win this medal; it isn't a contest. The Medal is awarded. The person is a "recipient" of the Medal of Honor. A general officer will salute a private if he is wearing the Medal of Honor.

I encourage you to look at Junior D. Edwards' citation on the Medal of Honor website and what others have done. They were fighting for us, but at the time they were fighting for their friends around them. It's been said that "freedom isn't free," and these 3,507 recipients have paid a great price.

Around you - All who you love
Within you - All you need*

In Years Past... May 1977

I-35 graduation achievement award recipients included Kim Strawn who received the "I Dare You" (Danforth Award) representing outstanding qualities of leadership, well-balanced in physical, mental, social and character development.

Former Local Man and Wife Direct Vanities

Frank Sposeto III and wife Tammy co-directed Vanities, a dinner theater production held April 24th at the Avenue of the Saints Event Center. The evening began with 5 p.m. Happy Hour, 6 p.m. Dinner (choice of delicious steak, chicken, or meatless pasta), followed by 7 PM Show.

Tickets at $35 included dinner, two well drinks or domestic beer, the show, and dessert.

Vanities: A bittersweet comedy that is an astute, snapshot sharp chronicle of the lives of three Texas girls. In 1963, Joanne, Kathy and Mary are aggressively vivacious cheerleaders. Five years later in their college sorority house, they are confronting their futures with nervous jauntiness. In 1974, they reunite briefly in New York. Their lives have diverged their friendship, which once thrived on assumption as well coordinated as sweater sets, is strained and ambiguous. Old time banter rings false. Their attempts at honest conversation only show they can no longer afford to have very much in common.

–Publisher’s description.

Following the show, a full crowd enjoyed Karaoke, by Brad Sinclair, in the room adjacent to the show.

Two great events in one night at the Avenue of the Saints Event Center and Talk Shop Lounge!

Annual Forages Can be a Valuable Resource

AMES, Iowa – Annual forages can provide flexibility when managing forage supply, whether filling forage production gaps or serving as a primary forage source.

Learn more about annual forages and integrating them into a cropping rotation in a virtual field day set for June 3 beginning at 8:30 a.m., hosted by Iowa State University Extension and Outreach.

"We've seen an interest from producers wanting to integrate both cool and warm season annual forages into their farming operation," said Erika Lundy, beef specialist with ISU Extension and Outreach. "However, many questions still remain regarding which forage species is best for a given situation or farm goal as well as their nutritional value and yield potential."

The event will highlight a research project evaluating different cool-season annual forage species in terms of forage nutritional value, yield potential and practical considerations for integrating annual forages into cropping rotations. To learn more about this project and what's been learned, plan to attend this virtual field day, which will feature a tour of the annual forage plots at outlying Iowa State University research farms.

There is no cost to participate and the field day is open to all. However, pre registration is required prior to the event. To register, go to www.aep.iastate.edu/forage. Once registered, participants will receive a confirmation email with the link to join, which will be provided through Zoom. If you don't have this app on your computer or device, you'll want to download and install it for the best quality.

Participants may join through their web browser, mobile phone or tablet and will need to download a free app prior to joining. Participants should join the webinar 10 minutes in advance to ensure connections and software are working correctly.

For more information, questions, or if you need assistance with registration contact Iowa Beef Center at beefcenter@iastate.edu or 515-294-BEFF (2333).

Funding for this project provided is by the Iowa Nutrient Research Center.

The Zoom download is available through the App Store for iOS devices <https://itunes.apple.com/us/app/id546505307> and through Google Play for Android <https://play.google.com/store/apps/details?id=us.zoom.videomeetings>.

The Iowa Beef Center at Iowa State University was established in 1996 with the goal of supporting the growth and vitality of the state's beef cattle industry. It comprises faculty and staff from Iowa State University Extension and Outreach, College of Agriculture and Life Sciences and College of Veterinary Medicine, and works to develop and deliver the latest research-based information regarding the beef cattle industry.

Pasutti Recognized By Governor Reynolds For Academic Excellence

West Des Moines Iowa - May 6, 2021 – Summer Pasutti, a student at Interstate 35, Truro, was recognized by Gov. Kim Reynolds and Lt. Governor Adam Gregg for outstanding academic achievement at the 19th Annual Governor's Scholar Recognition Ceremony April 25th at Hy-Vee Hall in Des Moines.

The statewide program, sponsored by the Iowa Governor's Office, Iowa High School Athletic Association (IHSAA) and its title sponsor the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation (IFBF), honored 424 high school seniors from across Iowa.

“Iowa Farm Bureau members are proud their organization showcase its commitment to youth and education in many ways, including the half million dollars in scholarships we provide each year. Our 19-year title sponsorship of the Annual Governor's Scholar Recognition Ceremony is just one way we celebrate Iowa's exceptional high school students,” said IFBF President Craig Hill. “We all recognize the need for supporting youth, because they hold the keys of Iowa's continued innovation and economic success.” Said Hill.

Each high school was invited to select a senior student with the highest academic ranking, based on grade point average for their first seven semesters. Students selected for the award also had the opportunity to recognize their favorite/most influential teacher and will receive a photo plaque of their meeting with Governor Reynolds and Lt. Governor Gregg.

“The principles learned through academic success, like those learned from participation in education-based activities, help develop outstanding leaders and citizens.” Said IHSAA Executive Director Tom Keating. “The partnership between the IHSAA and the Iowa Farm Bureau, along with the great cooperation of the Governor's Office has made this prestigious event possible for many years.”

Ninety-eight percent of those recognized also participate in extra-curricular school activities, with more than 75 percent participating in at least one interscholastic sport. More than 63 percent of the group plan to continue their education in Iowa.

We would like to congratulate all of the Seniors for the achievements. We wish them the best of luck for their futures.

The Tri-Corner-Express Board

As we wrap up the school year there are a few items to note. We want to again extend a thank you to all of our families for helping us navigate a school year unlike any we have had before. There were disruptions to our regular routines, added expectations for everyone, and so much uncertainty brought upon us by the pandemic. As we near summer, the prospect of a normal return to school is looking like a real possibility. Our hope is that public health guidelines allow us to return next fall with a mask-optional policy, a return to regular building use, and relaxation of capacity limits.

We will also be 100% in-person. There will be no option for remote learning during the 2021-2022 school year. Below are some important upcoming dates; if you have any questions please reach out to us.

May 23	Graduation, 2:00 pm
May 26	Last Day of School, regular dismissal time
August 2-6	Summer School (Grades K-8; More information will be forthcoming)
August 9-13	Summer School (Grades K-8; More information will be forthcoming)

Thank Your Local School Board Members This May for Leading Through Uncharted Waters

DES MOINES, Iowa (April 28, 2021) - The Iowa Association of School Boards (IASB) invites communities to celebrate and thank their local school board members during School Board Recognition Month, May 1-31, 2021. This year's theme is "School Boards: Leading Through Uncharted Waters" and pays tribute to these volunteers for their perseverance and leadership through the pandemic.

"Leadership at the board table has come with challenges we never anticipated. School boards across the state have been faced with incredibly difficult decisions that impact the health and safety of students, staff and the school community. There's never been a more important yet trying time to be on a school board and impact the future of our students," said IASB Board President Jim Green.

More than 2,000 Iowa board members (1,859 K-12, 79 AEA and 124 community college board members) volunteer countless hours on board work each month. They receive no compensation, but many say the reward of service is more than enough-meeting the needs of Iowa's future citizens.

These locally elected school board members oversee $5.96 billion statewide in Iowa public schools for 487,651 students. Please join us in celebrating these leaders by publicly thanking them for their hard work and dedication. IASB has developed a media toolkit which includes public service announcements, school board member facts and graphics for news articles. Visit www.ia-sb.org/SBRMMediaToolkit to access these resources.

IASB is a nonprofit organization representing Iowa's 327 public school districts, nine area education agencies and 15 community colleges.

Feline & Canine Parasites

From birth to adulthood, dog and cat owners should always be prudent with parasite control. Parasites are capable of causing serious illness and can easily be overlooked in our pets. In addition to this, parasites in our pets can even be transmissible to humans. Parasite control should start with our puppies and kittens and extend throughout the life of our pets. Controlling parasitism enables our pets to be as healthy as they can be, and it can prevent illness in the future. Strategically deworming cats and dogs can seem frustrating, but with the help of your veterinarian, it can be made simple.

The vast majority of pet owners know that each new kitten and puppy needs their exam and vaccines in order to prevent illness, especially at a young age. However, each new pet should have a fecal exam in order to establish the amount of parasites each pet has and how to treat them strategically. Every kitten and puppy are born with a certain amount of parasites because parasites are able to infect them in-utero with their mother. Depending on the parasite load, puppies and kittens can be given a dewormer to control the infection at a young age. This initial treatment helps clear the active infection and sets the pet up for success. Now, we should talk about how to control our pet's parasite load and the strategies we can use to make sure our pets are staying healthy.

An easy strategy to start employing to control parasites is to continue or start using monthly preventatives that prevent Heartworm Disease (Heartgard Plus, Interceptor Plus, Revolution Plus) because these products also deworm the pet monthly while at the same time preventing Heartworm. Pet owners that use preventatives are maintaining a healthy parasite load for their pets, and it's easy to start using preventatives for those that don't right now.

For those with cats that enjoy mousing or dogs that enjoy hunting, tapeworms can become an issue due to them eating other animals. Tapeworm treatment requires a specialized drug called Praziquantel and is not included in most monthly preventatives. Interceptor Plus for dogs and Centragard for cats are monthly preventatives that will treat and control tapeworms on a monthly basis. If tapeworms are diagnosed with a pet not on those preventatives, then treatment can be given with injectable or oral Praziquantel.

Jesus' Right Hand

Hello friends,

Spring has sprung! The tulips have sprung up, and the fragrance from the lilacs is coming forth. At the time of this writing, we are seeing the north wall of our building being transformed by the artists commissioned by the New Virginia Hometown Pride Committee. Spring is the season of fresh and new things, and it's exciting to see the daily progress on the mural. The bicycles and skateboards are once again in use, and the sound of lawnmowers bring forth the smell of freshly cut grass. If you listen closely, you can hear some of the crickets and frogs beginning their songs of spring. Are you ready to sing your song for the season? Many times, we get so overcome by all the work it takes to keep up our homes and businesses that we don't take time to "smell the roses" and appreciate all the beauty that is surrounding us. We are being bombarded by all the negativity taking place around us, however, there are always good things going on. God has given us another day; this means He is not done with us yet, or we would not be here on this earth. Make an effort to seek out the positive instead of focusing on the negative things that are going on. If you find it hard to find the positive, then BE the positive. Call someone on the phone and let them know you are thinking of them. Do a small random act of kindness for someone who is feeling down. Praise God for all He has given you, even though it does not fill your expected needs at this time. Learn to be still after you have made your request, and wait on God's timing. He hears every prayer, but we need to wait on His timing. Remember to thank God for allowing you to see the beautiful work of His hands.

We are constantly being surprised and blessed at Jesus' Right Hand with little ways that God seems to meet our needs and bless us unexpectedly. We are getting close to having all of our staff and volunteers back with us again after working for so long with only half the number of people. This past year has taught us that we can do more than we thought, and with the help of God, that we are much stronger and resilient than we give ourselves credit for. We have been so blessed to have new people come on board as volunteers, and they have quickly become family to us. And it seems, just at the right time, someone will walk through the door and offer their help for that particular day, just when we are short on help. It's so much fun to get to work side-by-side with someone from the community and get to know them better!

The type of food we give out every Monday during the Fresh Food Giveaway is usually based on what we have picked up during that week from the different places that have been generously donating to us on a regular basis. Some weeks it seems like we have mountains of cut broccoli, and the next week we have box after box of bread and desserts. We utilize every one of our freezers and refrigerators to keep these items fresh and viable for Mondays, and with few exceptions, all of the items we receive that week are given out on Mondays during the two hours of the giveaway. It still amazes us how the quantity we receive seems to meet the needs of everyone who comes to us for food with very little left over! Isn't that just like God to "multiply the fishes and loaves" when it looks like there isn't enough and bring in the multitudes when we have more than enough? We have never run out of food, even for the last-minute person pulling up to the door. God has seen to it that we have had more than enough food to provide for each and every person in need who comes to us for help. And it is amazing to watch Him work!

Please know that we are here for you, and we are only a phone call, an email or a door knock away! We are available to encourage and uplift with a prayer, a word of encouragement or just a listening ear. Be blessed in all you do.
